SETS A PACE IN SNOW REMOVAL

Work Done by Hugh L. Starr in Lower Manhattan Has Won Him the Title of the "King of Snow Fighters."

HAS BEEN BALL-PLAYER, ACTOR AND CONTRACTOR.

Now He Tells World Readers How He Handles His Gangs of Snow Shovellers and Keeps Them at Their Work.

Twice this winter has this city been buried under a fall of snow which paralysed traffic, and each time the city has been dug out so that in less than seventy-two hours transportation was resumed on its main streets, as if it had never been interrupted, and pedestrianism was not only possible but eay on all the thoroughfares.

How is this lightning change effected? What is it that transforms a city the strests of which are barricaded by lauge drifts of snow into a city where traffic goes on unimpeded within so short a space of time?

Energy and system-in these two things lie the success of the Snow-Cleaning Department of Munhattan. Complicated though it is, the various pasts of the snow-removing machinery are so perfectly constructed and fitted together that, once the machinery is started, it runs with a speed and smoothness that are astonishing to the uninitiated. Scarcely have the last flakes settled when an order from Contractor William Bradley puts the mathenery in motion all along the line, and before its mighty driving powers the snowdrifts melt as under the rays of Where Good Work Is Done. In all the city there is no district so hard to clean as the First District, a the lower end of the island. This district embraces the territory bounded by Broadway, Chambers street and South street, and includes some of the busiest thoroughfares in Manhattan. Hugh L Starr is the superintendent in charge of the district, and he has already several times earned the prize offered by Mr. Bradley to the superintendent whose district is first cleaned. Starr is a young, rugged man, to whom going without eleep for days at a time, as he frequently has to do, is a matter of as small consequence as the "scraps" he has with the east-side workmen when they threaten him because he does not give them work or pay them for work they had not done. "In the first case," as he put it. "I snatch a wink here and there, and take good rest after the job is done; and in the second I jump down from my wagon and administer a little knuckle medicine to the fellow. That's the only way to get along in this work." Starr has done a little of everything in his life. He has been a cakewalker, an actor, a baseball player and a con-Rumor also has it that he him who will deny this rumor.

and, between shouting out orders to his assistant, he explained just how the snow-removing engine is run.

"In last week's storm I not only had men at work all through the storm, trying to keep abreast of it, but within an hour after the general order came to go to work all over the city I had 1,000 shovellers on the job. These men some chiefly from the lodging-houses, but persons who are 'broke' and who think they see in a snowfall a little easy money also apply for work in large numbers. I am a little careful about taking them because they give a man all sorts of trouble, and will heat it every time they can. I soon carned that one of their favorite tricks was to come in take a shovel and go but and sell it to some 'guinny' outside the door for a quarter.
"I divide my district into sub-districts, over each of which a foreman is m charge.

"I divide my district in a foreman tricts, over each of which a foreman is m charge.
"The shoveliers have had just about time enough to get to work under the direction of the foremen when I start the teams out to cart the bles away as fast as the shoveliers heap them up. As the shoveliers heap them up. As a 700 trucks are pressed into many and carts of every description over by scores from South Brook-rome over be serviced.

McGovern on the Job.

"During this last storm Hughey Mc-Govern, the famous bantam-weight puglist, sent over a number of trucks and cleaned up more money than he has in lots of fights. Harry Fisher, a middle-weight, also thinks there is more money in carting away snow than in the ring, for he was out with a bunch of trucks.

"Once the shovellers and carts are at work there is no let up until all the "Once the shovellers and carts are at work there is no let up until all the streets of the district are clean. As fast as one man or a team gives out there is another man or team to take the vacant place. We attack Broadway, Park Row, Chambers street and Fulton itreet first, and, after these are cleaned, pass on to the less important streets. There is no time lost in beginning the work, and with 1,000 men and 700 trucks busy every minute of the day and night you can easily see that the snow must melt pretty rapidly, especially as every bit of the work is systematized. "We pay the shovelers 10 cents an hour and the teams by the cartional. Every driver receives one tickat for every cubic yard of snow his cart will hold when he begins work. When he seturns to the dumn he hands these lickets over to the inspector, and then goes back and fills his wagon again. He receives another set of tickets then which he turns in at the duma and another set.

DELIVERERS AS HOST AT BALL

More than 3,000 Guests Attend Reception at Grand Central Palace-Noted Labor Leaders Present.

Union No. 9,463, of New York, gave its fourth annual entertainment and reception at Grand Central Palace last night. More than 3,000 persons were present and the capacity of the beg hall was taxed. Nearly all the members of the various alled unions attended the entertainment, as well as the representatives of all the papers published in the

The merry-makers began to arrive early, and by 7 o'clock the hall was jammed. The women wore ball costumes and looked their prettiest. The entertainment began with an exceptionally good vaudeville programme. The performance was given under the personal supervision of James L. Barry, business manager of the Actors' Nation-

Great credit for this successful affair is due to William A. Coakley, of the Committee on Arrangements, and his assistants, who were:

DANCE TO-NIGHT

Harry Hart's Tammany Braves from the Thirtieth Assembly District Will Enjoy a Big Dou-

When the curtain rises to-night on the entertainment of the Algonquin Club in the Lexington Opera-House there will be present a big gathering of Harry Hart's followers from the Thirtleth Assembly District. There is a rattling vaudeville programme framed up for this part of the annual cut-up of the Algonquins, which will be followed by a reception and ball.

Every box in the Assembly rooms has been sold in advance and the crowd that is asking for more indicates that Tammany is safe in the Th'rtioth District, no matter what doubters may have to say about the outlook in other quarters.

It will be worth walking a mile barefoted to see the big blue and gold badge that will shine on the manly bosom of Assemblyman Bob Wagner, the chairdetermined that something has to be done to attract the attention of the girls of Yorkville. He says they are shy. They say he is so timid. Anyhow, the friends of Bob expect happenings after this ball.

Of course Big Mike Cosgrove will be on deck. Mike isn't as bashful as Bob—particularly where it is a case of getting out the vote on election day. There is a tradition that Mike can read the list of registered voters in the thirtieth each vear two ways from the middle. He knows every man, woman and child anoth of the three-mile stone, and, or course, his friends will all be there.

Moe Levy—not the diamond-fronted Moe, but the continuous performance pot-opener—has promised to be there with the bunch that gave his elea on operation must be performed.
